

From Hingham to Hollywood....

The story of Joseph Underwood and his descendants

This narrative is dedicated to Joseph and those that followed. He was an ordinary Englishman who did something extraordinary. He took a leap of faith in coming to America looking for a chance at a better life. His determination made all the difference. Many of his descendants had (and have !) that same drive and determination. They continued to look to the horizon and were unafraid to venture into the unknown. We are glad they did. This is their story...

1637 was a tumultuous year in many parts of world. Ferdinand III became the Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. Tulipomania was in full swing in Holland. People were spending the equivalent of thousands of dollars for a single tulip bulb. Protestant religious fervor was forcing many to seek a safer haven in parts of Europe or the New World. Charles I of England tried to force Anglicanism on the Scots. This eventually led to English Civil Wars and extreme turmoil in the growing English empire. In addition, it was in 1637 that Joseph Underwood decided to follow his older brother Thomas to Hingham, a new community in the Massachusetts Bay colony in America. He faced a largely unknown and dangerous future.

This is what the towns of the Massachusetts Bay looked like in the first wave known as the Great Migration. Location of Hingham shown with the earlier name of Barecove underneath in parentheses.

Joseph Underwood was a single man who likely saw the opportunity for the kind of economic gain he could never achieve in England. Common people in England simply did not own land. They rented it from large (often royal) landowners. This new world offered a chance for land ownership. When Joseph left London in the early spring of 1637¹, he was also beginning a new and potentially very dangerous way of life. That danger began with the voyage to the new world.

It is not known which ship Joseph chose for his journey nor his exact departure date. The ships often left in late spring for their 10-12 week voyage. It was cramped, dirty and dingy for most of the voyage with rotting food, seasickness, disease and death. Cleanliness was a bucket of sea water. People died (buried at sea) and babies were born. It was very common for several deaths to occur depending upon the health of the passengers at the beginning of the voyage. It was a very welcome sight when land was sighted. Joseph was obviously a healthy young man in his twenties but when the ship arrived at the port of Charleston, I am sure he was relieved.

Joseph made his way to Hingham where his arrival in 1637 was noted by the town. Thomas had arrived 1 or 2 years earlier and quickly became a town leader as a selectman and representative to the General Court as early as 1637:

Sometime in the year 1637 the settlement at Hingham adopted the system of having nine picked men to manage the affairs of the colony. The first men selected for this purpose were: Edward Hobart, Sr., Nicholas Jacob, Oement Bates, Henry Tuttle, Thomas Hammond, Anthony Eames, Henry Rust, Samuel Ward and Thomas Underwood. They had authority "to receive any person into the municipality; to give, grant, let & set, all for the good of the whole," but had not the power to fix the rate of taxation. A rule was adopted that if anyone of these nine men should fail to attend a meeting he should be fined "one peck of Indian com."²

¹ Most voyages were timed to arrive in the months of spring or summer. The small size of these ships made them very susceptible to bad weather.

Despite the trappings of civilization, this was a very small community and its existence remained precarious for many years. What was Hingham like when Joseph Underwood arrived?

Hingham was originally known as Barecove for its open windswept view of the harbor.³ Initial settlement by a few adventurous souls began in 1633-1634. It was in 1635 that a large number of devout folks arrived from a church in Hingham, Norfolk County, England led by Reverend Peter Hobart. The population jumped to over 50 families and brought some stability and hope for the future to the town. Fears of starvation diminished as the Massachusetts Bay area grew but danger was never very far away. Disease, accidents and Indians were constantly on the minds of the people. In a look to the future, the town began awarding plots of lands to all heads of families. The next wave of immigrants in early 1636 brought Thomas Underwood, the older brother of Joseph.

Thomas Underwood was already an established merchant in his mid-30s when he decided to come to the New World. The depression in the cloth trade in England in the 1630s may have influenced his decision.⁴ His social standing is confirmed in that he is referred to as a “gentleman”. He had a wife, Magdalen Underwood, but no children. See Appendix A – Thomas Underwood Family Group Sheet. Thomas had established connections to the cloth and weaving industry in the Norfolk and London area. He would use these once he arrived to secure needed items for the colonists. These purchases were actually recorded by Thomas Aspinwall who serves as a broker between the merchants and ships.

Thomas quickly established himself as a town leader. In the Fall of 1636, he was awarded a house-lot (also known as a home-stall) in “Hingham Center over the river”.⁵ Although we have found no formal record, it is virtually certain that he was a “freeman” which required a formal oath. These were the leaders of the community. This title or designation showed support of the church and was necessary if you were to vote or hold public office. With Thomas’ high social and economic standing, it was a foregone conclusion he would become a freeman. As he settled into life in colonial America, he was soon to be followed by younger brother Joseph. Whether his brother's arrival in Hingham was planned or spontaneous we may never know.

When Joseph Underwood arrived in Hingham, the town was still in the Palisade style in which the town was surrounded by a tall fence of tree posts in the manner of a fort. (See the drawing below) Land outside the fence was used for farming and pasture. Residents could retreat inside the fort in case of danger from Indians which would be a problem for many years culminating in King Phillip's War.⁶ There were an estimated 175 people total in the community.⁷

This is an example of a palisade or stockade being built.

Although Joseph Underwood was younger than his brother Thomas, the town granted him land not long after his arrival. These towns were initially eager for new settlers who could ensure their continued existence. That would change in the years ahead but for now the town would grant land to new arrivals. Joseph Underwood was listed as receiving land but no record of its location in ⁶ King Phillips War was between New England colonists and the Native Americans under the command of Metacomet known as King Phillip. Almost half the English towns were destroyed but the English eventually killed Metacomet and forced an end to the war in 1678.

⁷ Hingham Tercentenary Committee, Hingham Old and New, Hingham, MA, 1935

Hingham has yet been found. We might speculate that his land was somewhere near that of an earlier arrival, Edward Wilder, as Edward's sister became an important part of Joseph's life. Land divisions or dividends (land being given to citizens) continued in the early years. At one point Joseph was granted pasturage on an island in the harbor!⁸ As the years went by, newly arrived immigrants were forced to accept land in the outlying areas or purchase land from earlier arrivals.

Hingham continued to accept new arrivals with a major influx coming on the ship Diligent in 1638. Two of the passengers were the widow Martha Wilder and her "spinster" daughter Mary.⁹ They were joining Mary's brother Edward who had arrived 3 years earlier. At some point Mary Wilder met the young Joseph Underwood and they were married in May of 1644. See Appendix B – Joseph Underwood Family Group Sheet. Although Hingham's early records are spotty, their first child Mary Underwood was baptized April 13, 1645.¹⁰ It was their only child recorded as being born in Hingham.

In the early 1640s controversy erupted in the town of Hingham. A long time militia leader was unhappy with new recruits and refused to train them. The militia company sent in the name of a new commander to be confirmed but the colony magistrates balked. Folks in the town took sides and the controversy ended up in the Massachusetts General Court. The feeling of town unity was broken and many families moved away over the next several years.¹¹ The Underwoods were among those that eventually left.

Joseph had risen to a respectable position in the community and was part of a group that surveyed and divided land. He was confirmed a freeman in May 1645.¹² Despite all that, Joseph Underwood and his young family made the decision to go to Watertown in the late 1640s or early 1650s. Joseph's brother

So help me God in the Lord Jesus Christ." Joseph appears on page 21, listed under May 1645.

Thomas came to Watertown in 1651 so they would spend their remaining years in the same community again.

The town of Watertown was founded in 1630 and was a starting point for many new communities. Towns such as Wethersfield, Lexington, Cambridge, Sudbury, Concord, and others were either founded by folks from Watertown or were split off from the original boundaries. By the time Joseph and Thomas arrived it was a very strong and ordered community. Thomas quickly became a leader and was elected as a selectman (town leader) by 1656. Thomas acquired several hundred acres of land in various locations in Watertown. Thomas and Magdalen remained childless but had Joseph and Mary's children as nieces and nephews.

Joseph and Mary Wilder Underwood had children on a regular basis. Martha was born in 1647, Joseph was born in 1650, Sarah in 1652, Hannah in 1654, and Elizabeth in 1656. Their youngest child, Thomas, (named for his uncle) was born October 11, 1658.¹³ Unfortunately Mary Wilder Underwood died soon after on December 13, 1658. Cause of death is unknown but childbirth and complications from childbirth were some of the leading causes of death. Joseph was left with 7 young children ranging in age from 13 to infant. Prior to Mary's death they had built a good life.

Joseph's status as a freeman made him a respected member of the church and community. He held his share of assigned town jobs as required of all citizens¹⁴ and was a member of the church which enabled his children to be baptized. He purchased land in Watertown in 1654 buying a home-stall and several other parcels totaling over 70 acres for £30 (30 English pounds). The sale was somewhat controversial because the owner (Joshua Stubbs) had died and not all those who stood to inherit were in favor of selling. Finally the widow, who was about to be remarried, agreed to sell. See an excerpt from the original recorded deed that follows. Although the handwriting is difficult to read, you can make out names as well as number of acres and selling price. To accurately translate or read one of these often takes a greatly enlarged view of the document and patience.

In this excerpt you can see the name of Joseph Underwood in the upper right. As was common with deeds of the time they followed a set written formula to ensure transfer of ownership and were very particular in assigning a description to the land being sold. Some of the notes on the side indicate approximate acreage.

As land sales continued over the years, the description often involved simply naming the prior owners or the prior deed listed in a particular volume or a particular page. One later genealogist, Henry Bond, went ahead and attempted to overlay a map of Watertown along with the various successive landowners. It is in this way we can find at least some of the property of Joseph and Thomas Underwood.

= Joseph Underwood Properties 1649 - 1676

= Thomas Underwood Properties 1649 - 1668

As the years passed, Joseph's son Thomas went to live with his namesake Uncle Thomas Underwood and wife Magdalen. They were childless but obviously were fond of young Thomas who was remembered in his Uncle's will in a significant way. Thomas Underwood died April 7, 1668.¹⁵ The inventory of his estate establishes that he was fairly wealthy by town standards. See Appendix D – Inventory of Estate. It is through the will of Thomas Underwood that we are able to confirm that he is indeed the brother of Joseph as well as the names of Joseph's children. He leaves Joseph and his nephews and nieces (referred to as "cousens") varying amounts of money. In his will he also makes his nephew, Thomas, a primary recipient of his land when he comes of age. See Appendix E – Will of Thomas Underwood. His wife Magdalen is named his executrix and given a large share of his estate. Magdalen is also given the ability to revoke Thomas' promised land if she decides he proves to be "...stubborne or rebellious". That would make Thomas a major landowner when he came of age. Unfortunately, this story does not have a happy ending.

To the everlasting confusion of genealogists for generations, Magdalen married again in 1669 to another Thomas Underwood. This Thomas was unrelated to her late husband or her nephew or brother-in-law Joseph. Many genealogists actually wrongly assumed she had remarried to her nephew Thomas who would have been only 11 years old! This new husband was known as a "gentleman" which implied elevated social standing. When this Thomas died in 1680 he left his estate to his son Thomas (another one) who lived in England. Magdalen and new husband Thomas began selling the land acquired by her first husband Thomas. She often sold land to her own kin and when she died in 1687, she left everything to her own nephews and nieces rather than giving Thomas what her first husband had promised.

As Joseph's children grew, the older girls, Sarah and Martha, were surely called on to help with the younger children as there was no mother. Joseph waited longer than is the norm to remarry. It was very common to remarry within a year but Joseph did not remarry until early 1665. He married widow Mary How of Dorchester¹⁶. Not much is known about her and she died in January of 1667. Joseph did not marry again.

One interesting note is that Joseph took on an apprentice in 1667 for a stipend of £12 a year. The apprentice's name was Ben Davis and he was a 10 year old orphan. Joseph was required to provide food, lodging, and religious instruction. There is no mention of teaching a trade but perhaps it was something in the cloth or weaving area. A pragmatic view is that it paid him £12 a year which would help him with expenses. When Joseph died, his son Joseph took over the role of Master to Ben.

Joseph Underwood, immigrant ancestor, died February 17, 1676.¹⁷ See Appendices F & G - original death record from Watertown. He was 62 years old. Probate records of the time do not list a will but there are two estate papers. The first is an inventory of Joseph's estate. See Appendix H for original copy. It includes his land which was the most valuable asset but also many mundane everyday items.

£ = English pound sterling s = English shillings 20 shillings = 1 pound

One intriguing item is the last one “A servant boy”. Was this the apprentice Ben Davis or someone else? Indentured servants often worked as servants for several years to pay for passage to the new world. In this case, it likely refers to Ben. An apprentice was legally bound and had value. Joseph's son, Joseph, took over the apprentice contract after the estate was settled.

The second estate document is the administration of the estate and division of the assets. As was common, the oldest son, Joseph, was named the administrator of his father's estate. See Appendix I. Joseph also received a double share of the estate as the oldest often did. Joseph's other children are listed with the exception of his first born Mary. No mention is made of her. There is a listing of the siblings giving some additional funds to Hannah. She was 22 and not yet married so maybe she cared for her father and they were acknowledging her. Hannah was married a few years later. Although the sums may seem to be relatively small by today's terms, they represented a substantial amount of money.

Thomas Underwood was the youngest son of Joseph and Mary. While much of his youth was spent with his Uncle Thomas, by the time his father Joseph died, Thomas was 18 and approaching manhood. With the money inherited from his father's estate and whatever he may have received from Uncle Thomas, he would be able to start his adult life. Unfortunately it would not be a very long one.

As indicated previously, Underwood genealogists have had problems for years in identifying each Thomas as there were so many over 2 or 3 generations. The problems with correctly identifying the second husband of Magdalen and his son continued to the next generation in trying to identify Thomas (son of Joseph) in records. Fortunately there are some areas most agree.

Thomas Underwood married Mary Palmer November 19, 1679. See Appendix J for an excerpt from the original record. They were both from Watertown and set about making a life for themselves. Eleven months later their first child named Thomas is born. See Appendix K – Thomas Underwood Family Group Sheet. Mary was born in 1682, Elizabeth follows in 1684, Jonathan in 1686 (see appendix L), Abigail in 1687, Martha in 1689 and finally another Thomas in 1691.

Thomas was not a “public” member of the church but had “owned the covenant” privately which meant he agreed to follow the teachings of the church while not being a full member.¹⁸ Mary Palmer Underwood had owned the covenant publically and was a full member. Thomas’s agreement was important because it allowed his children to be baptized.

“Ye 28th of Nov, 1686, I baptized viz; 4 children of Thomas Underwood who owned the covenant privately, and his wife publicly viz, Thomas, Jonathan, Mary, and Elizabeth.”¹⁹

Thomas was listed in town records as a farmer and served in the militia during King Phillip’s War for which he was paid £1 10 shillings in February 1677.²⁰ Thomas and his family live in a part of Watertown that will eventually become Lexington. His days would have been spent at hard physical labor but that was normal for most men.

One curious incident was a lawsuit brought by Thomas Underwood against two fellow citizens for theft of some letters that were addressed to him. The contents were never made clear but Thomas was obviously aggravated enough to pursue a civil lawsuit or damages. The outcome of the lawsuit was never published.²¹

Life seems to be good for the Underwood family when tragedy strikes over several months in 1691. Father Thomas Underwood, only 32 years old, dies of smallpox on March 1, 1691.²² Thomas had been pestered for years by the pastor to join the church and only agreed as he lay on his deathbed. Here are the comments from the pastor's record:

"1 March 1691, I admitted one Thomas Underwood but he was buried just 3 hours before he was to be admitted, a stupendous providence. He died of ye smallpox. He was a thriving man both as to his own world and other and likely to have been of great use to this church and town. He died comfortably..."²³

In June of 1691 Mary is nearly ready to give birth to their 7th child. Oldest son Thomas was stricken with illness or suffered an accident and dies. Mary named their latest child born June 3, 1691 with the name of Thomas. Repeating names of deceased children was a common practice.

The only other definite mention of Mary Palmer Underwood is in 1692. The selectmen of Watertown issue a warning on the 29th of March 1692:

"...on understanding that the widow Underwood has taken into her house one Benaneuell Davis and his family, the selectmen sent for said Underwood and informed her they did not approve of her entertaining of any of them and that if she did she must give the town sufficient bond to hold the town harmless which she refused to do..."²⁴

Towns such as Watertown which were prosperous jealously guarded their treasury and offered support only for official residents. They did not want anyone who was not a resident of the town actually living there. It was very common practice to issue such "warnings to leave". They were often followed by instructions to the constable to enforce the edict. If these visitors were living with a citizen, the citizen might be allowed to post a bond with the town that would be used if the newcomers needed financial help. This ensured no financial drain on the town. Joseph Underwood had received such a warning from the city of Dorchester in the 1660s. Perhaps he had been visiting his future wife Mary How.

It is not difficult to imagine that Mary Palmer Underwood might need the financial and physical help the visitors/boarders could potentially provide as she was a young widow with small children but that made little difference to the town. In 17th century New England rules were taken seriously. Nothing more is known of Mary Palmer Underwood.

One of the sons of Thomas Underwood was Jonathan born on August 18, 1686. See Appendix L for an excerpt from the original record. This would become a common name for several generations. This particular Jonathan has been identified as everything from a farmer to sea captain with hometowns being listed as Boston, Framingham and Sudbury among others. Thankfully we have some definitive records but a complete history of this Jonathan is elusive and sketchy.

Jonathan grew up in a section of Watertown that would become Lexington in the early 1700s. As he grew older he also spent time in Cambridge, Sudbury, and Weston but he is not listed as being “of Watertown” any more although he most certainly had relatives there and had been baptized there as indicated previously.

Jonathan’s ties to Watertown were evident in that he met and married a Watertown girl, Ruth Holland. Jonathan had visited Watertown so often he was officially warned by the selectmen in 1709 that he needed to return to Lexington.²⁵ He was no longer considered a resident even though his father and grandfather had been residents. Despite any difficulty, he married Ruth Holland (the obvious reason for his frequent visits to Watertown) and they settled in Lexington. See Appendix M – Jonathan Underwood Family Group Sheet.

Their marriage is listed in the vital records of Watertown and Lexington. Watertown lists the marriage in 1709 while Lexington lists it as 1710. This would not necessarily give anyone pause but the possible difference may play a part in a later incident in Ruth’s life.

Following their marriage in 1709/1710, 5 children were born in Lexington. We only have baptismal dates. Ruth was baptized on September 23, 1711, Thomas was baptized on Feb 10 1712, Sarah on May 23, 1714, Jonathan on January 26, 1716 and Sarah on May 10, 1719. The naming of Sarah indicates the earlier Sarah had died. The use of Jonathan again in our particular line will cause further genealogical confusion.

Watertown proved to remain a strong attraction for this family. In February 1732 Ruth went back to her home town. She went to the church:

“Ruth Underwood made a public confession of her sin and was received into favor.”²⁶

²⁵ Historical Society of Watertown, Watertown Records Vol. 2, Watertown, MA 1894

²⁶ Historical Society of Watertown, Book of Pastors 1686 – 1819, David Clapp, Boston, MA 1906, pg 104

This meant that Ruth confessed to violating the seventh commandment forbidding “fornication prior to marriage”. This was often a condition of being accepted into a church. This allowed the baptism of her child who was conceived before marriage. The child was not named.

In 1736 the selectmen of Watertown were notified that Jonathan and Ruth Underwood (along with 3 children) “late of Woburn” were living with Nathaniel Bowman²⁷. They were warned to leave town. Although Ruth was “town born” she gave up her right to be an inhabitant of Watertown when she married Jonathan. Even her return to the church in 1732 was not enough to overturn this rule. The Underwoods had to leave.

There is no positive identification of this particular Jonathan and Ruth Underwood in future years. We do not have death or estate information. It is likely they remained in Middlesex County as some of their children settled in Sudbury. Perhaps Jonathan lived in the area as well. There were several Jonathan Underwoods alive in the mid-1700s in the Massachusetts Bay colony which makes pinpointing the family of Jonathan and Ruth difficult. Perhaps someday a record will surface to identify their eventual location but for now their later life remains hidden. Jonathan would have been close to 50 when Watertown warned he and Ruth to leave. Although never certain, the average life span would lead one to believe he probably lived until sometime in the 1750s.

His son Jonathan enjoyed a very long life. Born on January 26, 1716²⁸, Jonathan was the first Underwood to be publicly identified as a shoemaker. For much of his life he lived in the Sudbury/Wayland/Weston area of Middlesex county. Court records as well as land records always refer to him as Jonathan Underwood, Cordwainer. This is an old-fashioned description for a shoemaker. That skill would persist for several generations.

 of Two hundred Pounds lawful money to me in hand before the entealing hereof well and truly paid by Joseph Livermore of Weston

Jonathan Underwood me to
 Joseph Livermore

The above is a description of a land sale from Jonathan Underwood to Joseph Livermore who is the brother-in-law of Jonathan's son Reuben. You can see that Jonathan is described as Cordwainer. (Outlined in the figure above) If he is described in official documents as a Cordwainer, it is likely that description was well known and used to differentiate this Jonathan from others of the same name. This Jonathan was usually named as being from Sudbury, Weston or Wayland depending upon the circumstances and range of years but almost always as a Cordwainer.

Sudbury (and later Wayland) were well known as centers for early colonial shoemaking and became prominent for it by the early 1800s.²⁹ Jonathan's shoemaking was more of an individual enterprise rather than a manufacturing process which developed later. Jonathan was something of an entrepreneur who also bought and sold parcels of land his entire life. It is likely he farmed or perhaps rented out farmland to others.

Jonathan met and married Lydia Muzzey in June 1744.³⁰ The Muzzey family had roots in many of the same places as the Underwoods. They were married and settled down in Sudbury. The central town of Sudbury was well established but the eastern end was largely unsettled and available. The Underwoods migrated slowly in that direction.

³⁰ Town Clerk of Weston, Vital Records of Weston, Weston, MA, 1901, pg 140, 305, & 339

Jonathan and Lydia Underwood had a large family befitting a rural family of the time. See Appendix N – Jonathan Underwood Jr. Family Group Sheet. They had a total of 10 children with each one approximately every two years. Their first, Kezia, was born in 1746 and the last, Mary, was born in 1764. Reuben Underwood was born on June 9, 1751.

Jonathan quickly became a respected member of the community. He served a wide variety of town offices. Typically, a male resident would be appointed to a particular job for one year. These jobs generally involved ensuring fairness and enforcing town policies. These men were considered town officers. See Appendix O – Massachusetts's Town Officials. Some of the positions Jonathan held included: Surveyor of Highways, Sealer of Leather, Hog Reeve, and Field Driver.³¹

³¹ Each year the town records of Sudbury would list the new officials for each job. Those jobs mentioned are just those from town records that were available.

Jonathan also felt the call of duty to protect his neighbors and towns. With the outbreak of hostilities with the French in the French and Indian Wars, he enlisted in the Sudbury militia in 1757 and served for several years. He was a corporal in the First Foot Company of Sudbury under the command of Captain Moses Maynard. Later he served in the regiment of Colonel Elisha Jones.

Jonathan also felt obligated to protect his livelihood as a Cordwainer and would bring suit if necessary. It was very common for citizens to bring a matter to the Court of Common Pleas if it could not be resolved by the selectmen or the church. An example of one such lawsuit is shown below:

Jonathan Underwood (Cordwainer) sued Aaron Brown of Leominster in 1755. Jonathan was awarded £2 3s 8d. Aaron was also fined for court costs. There are several of these sprinkled throughout court records with Jonathan as the plaintiff.³²

Lydia Muzzey Underwood died on April 9, 1766 when she was just 41 years old.³³ She is buried in the Farmers Burying Ground of Weston, MA. Her gravestone is slowly becoming illegible as the slate flakes off but reads:

April ye 9th 1766
Here lies ye body of
MRS. LYDIA

ye wife of Jonathan Underwood who died April ye 9th, 1766
in ye 41st year of her age

Her youngest child was just 2 years old. There is no listed cause of death but pockets of smallpox still caused great havoc and death very quickly in New England. There had been a severe outbreak in January in Chatham that killed many members of the Rider family. Descendants of those stricken would unite with the Underwoods several generations later. It is also possible Lydia died in childbirth as this was two years since the birth of her last child. She had a child with Jonathan roughly every two years but this is only speculation. We may never know the cause but she was an otherwise healthy woman who had ten children over a span of 20 years.

With such a large family in the mid – 18th century, Jonathan would need another wife and it did not take long before he married widow Eunice Grout.³⁴ It was September 16, 1766 which was just 5 months after Lydia's death. There has never been any mention of any children Eunice may have brought to the marriage. Jonathan would outlive Eunice as she died in July of 1800³⁵ but they were married for over 30 years.

Jonathan and his family lived through the American Revolution. 3 of his sons served in the war with both Samuel and Jonas listed as possibly dying during the conflict. There is no evidence that son Reuben, who was married and had children, ever served in the colonial army. The American Revolution obviously had an effect on their life but there is no record of their thoughts or feelings on the changes or the conflict. Massachusetts was a center of the fighting but how much may have touched the Underwoods we may never know.

With the creation of the United States, Jonathan became the first of this Underwood line to be noted on the 1790 census and later the 1800 Federal Census. You can see from the cropped 1790 census page following, Jonathan had some sons old enough to be listed separately as well. Not a lot of information but some clues as to who was still in the home, gender, and age range. Jonathan's son, Jonathan Jr., is shown here.

Jonathan also appeared in the 1800 census in what was still officially listed as East Sudbury.

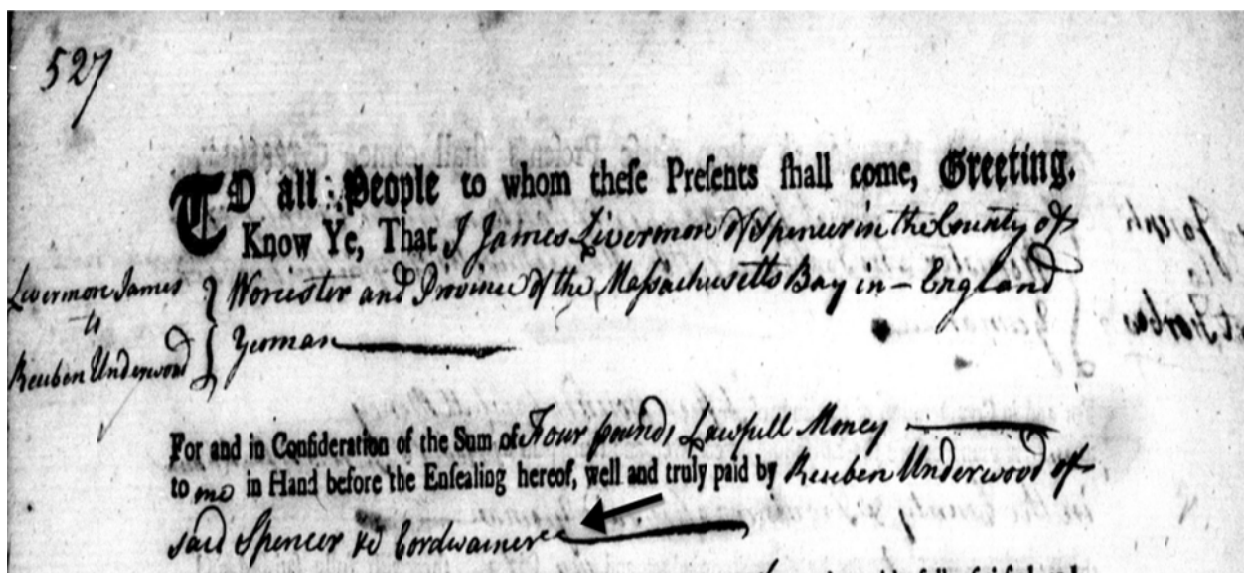

On the 29th of January, 1804, 88 year old Jonathan Underwood died. His death is recorded in the official vital records of Wayland, MA.³⁶ No grave site has ever been located nor is there any record of an estate. Hopefully one or both will eventually come to light.

Reuben Underwood was the first of this lineage to settle outside of Middlesex county. Born on June 9, 1751 in Sudbury³⁷, Reuben was the third of 10 children. He spent his youth in Sudbury and later Weston. He would have been 6 years old when his father first left to fight in the French & Indian War. He was nearly 14 when his mother died in 1766. At that age he was likely finished with school and was now assisting his father. The skill Jonathan was known for (shoemaking) would now be passed to Reuben. On most official documents such as deeds, Reuben was known as Reuben Underwood of Spencer, Cordwainer. Here in a land deed document the label is applied to Reuben:

Reuben would produce shoes for sale and for family almost his entire life. Like most people of the time, Reuben would have many other skills such as farming, animal husbandry, leather work and of course shoemaking. It took this and more to survive. This was not considered unusual but rather just a part of life. Families needed diverse set skills to survive.

A study of shoemaking in Massachusetts³⁸ showed a copy of an account ledger of a merchant who purchased shoes from Reuben. Merchants would purchase shoes from local “Cordwainers” to sell in their store which was usually located in an adjacent town. Styles would not vary much but each one was handcrafted and so no two were exactly alike. An excerpt follows:

³⁸ Hazard, Blanche, The Org. of the Boot & Shoe Industry in MA prior to 1875, Harvard Univ., 1913, pg 242

 The "general store" account books of Skinner and Ward of North Brookfield for 1813 to 1815 when the second stage still survived there, show Reuben Underwood making $10.90 of shoes between Dec. 21, 1813 and July 10, 1815 to put on sale. Doliver and Norwell, joining forces, worked on a larger scale. These same books show that they made $155.25 shoes "to be left" at Skinner & Ward's "on account" between July 2 and Nov. 1, 1813.

Reuben made shoes for the burgeoning shoemaking industry although in this case, Skinner and Ward was a general store. Reuben would make shoes to order for a customer (likely a neighbor) or if there was available time, he would make shoes for a retail store. He might also barter this skill for goods or services he did not possess. While making shoes was not necessarily unusual, it was not a skill all families possessed. Reuben might barter for someone who could make some tools for him or perhaps as payment for a doctor visit.

The first thought of migrating east towards Worcester county came from Reuben's father, Jonathan, who purchased some land there in 1770. Reuben would have been 19 at the time and may have been involved. Perhaps this is where he first met Eunice. On November 3, 1773 he married Eunice Livermore³⁹. Her family, like the Underwoods, had been in New England for generations. Her family was settled in Spencer which was in Worcester county. The newly married pair settled in Spencer to begin their life. See the map of Massachusetts that follows.

³⁹ Town Clerk of Weston, Weston Vital Records, NEGHS, 1903

Worcester County is highlighted with the Town of Spencer in red. Middlesex County which was home to the Underwoods for over 100 years is to the Northeast.⁴⁰

Reuben and Eunice have their first child, Susannah in September of 1774. She is followed by Sally in 1778, Samuel in 1779 and Reuben in 1784⁴¹. Samuel died in 1781 but the family would weather this tragedy that was all too common. The American Revolution was coming to an end and excitement was in the air. The world seemed alive with possibilities.

Reuben had begun buying and selling parcels of land much as his father had done before him. His purchases often involved family and his first few purchases were from Jonas Livermore who was the father of Eunice. Much of a family's wealth was tied up in land which was passed down to later generations. Land was taken very seriously with painstaking descriptions of a parcel. These descriptions could be confusing without a clear understanding of the geography of the local area. Legal descriptions of land at the time used a system called metes and bounds. This example is from Wikipedia:

A typical description for a small parcel of land would be: "beginning with a corner at the intersection of two stone walls near an apple tree on the north side of Muddy Creek road one mile above the junction of Muddy and Indian Creeks, north for 150 rods to the end of the stone wall bordering the road, then northwest along a line to a large standing rock on the corner of John Smith's place, thence west 150 rods to the corner of a barn near a large oak tree, thence south to Muddy Creek road, thence down the side of the creek road to the starting point."

⁴⁰ Wikipedia, Worcester County, 2011

⁴¹ Town Clerk of Spencer, Vital Records of Spencer to 1849 Vol. 1, NEGHS, Boston, MA 1909, pg 107

As long as all parties agreed to an understanding it went fine. Disagreements frequently ended up in court. As years passed, parcels tended to be bounded by buildings and roads which made for an easier understanding.

Earlier it had noted that Reuben was in the 1790 census. He was shown living next to his father-in-law in Spencer. Here is an excerpt from the census:

An Enumeration of the Inhabitants of the town of Spencer
Names of Heads of Families.	Free white Males of 16 years old, and upwards.	Free white Males, under 16 years.	Free white Females.	All other free Persons.	Slaves.
James Livermore	2	3	5
Reuben Underwood	2	1	3
U. A. ...	1	2	3

The census taker showed 2 white males over the age of 16 living in Reuben's household. His only living son was 6 so maybe another relative, farm laborer or apprentice shoemaker. The three females are wife Eunice and both daughters.

Tragedy struck the Reuben Underwood family in 1790. Just about the time of the first federal census Eunice Livermore Underwood died. The date was July 17, 1790 and she left behind a husband and 3 small children. No cause of death is known.

As was commonplace, Reuben quickly remarried. On February 3, 1791 he married Sybil Whittemore⁴² who was 32⁴³ and unmarried. She was the daughter of Jeremiah and Mary Whittemore. The Whittemores had deep roots in New England and were major landowners in the area. Jeremiah had moved to Spencer from Weston in 1760.

The labor engine of any rural 18th century family was comprised of children and the Underwood family was no exception. Just over 10 months from marriage, Amos Underwood was born. Children followed at regular intervals including twins Jonas and Sybil in 1797. Reuben and Sybil had 7 children bringing the total of the blended family to ten children however two died in infancy. See Appendix P – Reuben Underwood Family Group Sheet.

Reuben continued his business as a Cordwainer and continued to buy and sell land. He purchased and sold several parcels with Jeremiah Whittemore who was Sybil's father. On the death of Jonas Livermore (father of Eunice and grandfather to his 3 oldest children) he took part in the administration of the estate to protect the interests of his older children. When Jeremiah Whittemore passed away in 1803, he became involved in the probate to protect the interests of his wife Sybil and younger children. Reuben was by all accounts a sharp businessman who was very prepared to protect his family's interests.

Reuben was a respected member of the community as well. In the History of Spencer⁴⁴ he is described as follows:

“Mr. Underwood was a farmer and shoemaker and Deacon of the Congregational Church.”

Reuben is often referred to as Deacon Reuben Underwood. His duties included assisting the pastor, looking after the welfare of the sick and poor, collecting the tithes and protecting the finances of the church. The Underwood's church in Spencer, Massachusetts has been operating for the last 260 years.

Descendants often yearn for a picture of their ancestors but photography did not become commonplace until the mid to late 1800s. Generally only the well-to-do had paintings made but there was an alternative. Silhouette artists were very popular and relatively inexpensive. Even though you did not get the detail of a painting you could get a general likeness. In a remarkable coincidence, the ⁴² 32 would have been a relatively late age for a woman to marry for the first time but the circumstances are unknown.

Museum of the Daughter's of the American Revolution (DAR) located in Washington, D.C. has a framed cutout of Reuben and Sybil Underwood:

They also have painting of Cyrus Underwood (son of Reuben) and his wife Emeline as well as a cutout of Reuben's son Amos. As of yet, we have no information as to how they came to be in the possession of the DAR but likely were donated by Cyrus and his wife or a descendant who was a member of the DAR. Quite a coincidence and a bit of astonishing good luck.

Reuben Underwood died on November 20, 1830 at the age of 79.⁴⁵ He had a long and productive life. He would be the last of this particular line to live his entire life in Massachusetts. At this point, the next generation looked to the frontier which was the wilds of New York.

Reuben's will was written in 1828. It is clear and concise in outlining how his estate should be divided. See Appendix Q - Reuben's will. He made sure that Sybil would have every need provided...as long as she remained a widow and did not remarry. The properties left by Jonas Livermore and Jeremiah Whittemore were left to their respective grandchildren. Special provision is made for daughter Eunice Underwood. Although there is no mention, one does get the feeling that Eunice may have been sickly or disabled. She never married and lived with her mother and later her brother Jonas. Reuben's son, Jonas, was named executor and prime recipient of Reuben's estate. Jonas was required to pay his siblings $100.00 and provide for his mother but the land was worth much more than that. The eventual sale of this land in Spencer would bring Jonas thousands of dollars.

⁴⁵ Town Clerk of Spencer, Vital Records of Spencer to 1849 Vol. 1, NEGHS, Boston, MA 1909, pg 271

Jonas Underwood, along with his twin sister Sybil, was born on March 11, 1797 in Spencer.⁴⁶ He grew up in a large family and at a young age, he would be expected to complete daily chores and attend school. He learned shoemaking from his father and used that skill throughout his life although it was never as prominent as it had been for his father. Life in the early 1800s was still very difficult. Each family was basically self sufficient. If the family needed something they could not produce, they would have to spend precious dollars or even barter for it. They would often make do with what they had or do without.

Jonas was born not long after the American Revolution but he would have been 15 when the War of 1812 broke out. The scarcity of records relating to service in the war means we do not have any indication that his older brother Amos served. Jonas and his younger brothers would have been too young to serve in the Army. By the early 1820s, Amos had left to seek new opportunities on the frontier of New York. Land was cheap and plentiful there. A smart young man could build a life buying and selling. Other Underwoods would follow.

Jonas grew to adulthood in Spencer. He met Hannah Browning from the adjoining town of Rutland and they were married on May 23, 1824 in Spencer.⁴⁷ In 1822 when Jonas was 25 years old, his father sold him about 60 acres of land. An excerpt from the recorded deed is below. Some of the land was that which Reuben had purchased years earlier from Jeremiah Whittemore, Jonas' grandfather.

Underwood Reuben to Jonas Underwood

Know all men by these Presents that I Reuben Underwood of Spencer, in the County of Worcester, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts Yeoman in consideration of six hundred and fifty dollars paid by Jonas Underwood of Spencer, aforesaid Yeoman the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge, do hereby give, grant, sell and convey unto the said Jonas Underwood his heirs and assigns, the one half undivided and in common of two certain tracts of land in Spencer, aforesaid with the buildings thereon standing, lying on the East and West side of a Town road, leading from John Boydens to Frederick Howesit being the same premises which I purchased of Jeremiah Whittemore by deed bearing date the tenth day of March A.D. 1801.

children were born in Auburn. William was born in 1833 and Lewis followed in 1835.

One other noteworthy location pointed out on the map is the Auburn State Prison. It was hailed around the world for its innovative practices. Built in 1816, it was famed for the “Auburn System” which was believed to rehabilitate prisoners. Some of its principles:

In contrast with the purely reformatory type prison instituted in Pennsylvania, introduced by the Quakers, the "Auburn System" modified the schedule of prayer, contemplation, and humane conditions with hard labor and work.

Prisoners were compelled to work during the day, and the profit of their labor helped to support the prison. Prisoners were segregated by type of criminality into different locations within the prisons and by the use of special clothing. The traditional American prison uniform, consisting of horizontal black and white stripes, originated at the Auburn prison. The prisoners had their heads closely cropped and walked in lockstep, keeping step with their heads bowed. Each prisoner placed a hand on the shoulder of the man in front of him to maintain a rigid separation.

There was a communal dining room so that the prisoners could gather together for meals, but a code of silence was enforced harshly at all times by the guards. Thus the inmates worked and ate together, but in complete silence. At night the prisoners were kept in individual cells (even though the original plan called for double cells).⁴⁸

While interesting, this is important to us because Jonas Underwood served as a guard, known as a “keeper”, at the prison. Keepers were formally dressed with top hat and long formal coat. They were expected to see to the needs of an assigned group of prisoners. This meant everything from spiritual needs to discipline. Discipline often involved “caning” or a bath of ice water. Jonas’ name can be seen in the following excerpt from a list of prison officials in 1842⁴⁹:

Jonas was paid an annual salary of $ 550.00 which was a substantial sum of money. If he continued farming and ran the sawmill as well, he probably needed to hire outside help to supplement the efforts of his family. By all accounts it would have been a comfortable life financially. The job was certainly secure as the prison was there to stay (and is still there today).

The rigid system at the prison was not without controversy. The state government often sponsored studies and reviews of the practices and monitored the treatment and complaints by prisoners. I have attached one such review in which a prisoner complains of treatment and names Jonas who had administered standard punishments for a difficult prisoner. Jonas was not censured. See Appendix S – Auburn Prison Review

One last prison related item is a list of expenses reimbursed to employees and vendors:

No other information is available on this but it is fun to speculate.

Charles Browning Underwood, who was about 13 years old, was reimbursed 50¢ for making a hat for the prisoners.⁵⁰ We can find no other mention of Charles' millinery talents.

Jonas quickly became a respected citizen and was often mentioned in local newspaper articles. He signed a letter in support of the banks that appeared in the local newspaper during the Panic of 1837.⁵¹ He is mentioned as a member of the Whig political party.⁵² In April 1844 it is noted that his house was damaged by a fire.⁵³

By the early 1850s, Jonas decided to move further west to Chautauqua County. He sold his property in stages but eventually netted over $10,000. This is an astounding sum and the equivalent of almost a half million dollars today. It may have been its location as Auburn expanded or perhaps the sawmill contributed to making it so valuable. Whatever the case, Jonas Underwood was set financially for the remainder of his life.

The family moved to the village of Mayville which was the county seat for Chautauqua and set on the shores of Lake Chautauqua. Jonas purchased land there and settled into life as a farmer. Jonas was a respected member of the community serving in several town offices and positions. In 1858 he was elected the Supervisor of Elections for the Mayville area⁵⁴ and several times he served as a judge of horses in the Chautauqua County Fair.⁵⁵ He was also elected as a Commissioner for Chautauqua.

In the 1860 Federal census, there was an agricultural data collection as well. Shown below is the data for Jonas that he reported in 1860.

This agricultural information shows Jonas has a farm of roughly 150 acres. He had 5 horses, 9 cows and 3 swine. His farm produced 100 bushels of Indian corn, 75 bushels of oats and 30 bushels of wheat. The production is somewhat low but Jonas is 62 years old by this time. His son Lewis is unmarried and assists with the farm. His sister Eunice lives with them as well. The money made on the sale of their land in Cayuga would help ease any shortfall.

Jonas Underwood was 66 years old when he died on January 5, 1864 in Mayville. He is buried in what is known as the "Barnes Cemetery" alongside many of his family members.⁵⁶ Lewis took over the farm supporting his mother Hannah and sister Eunice. Hannah died in 1885 at the age of 85 and was laid to rest next to Jonas. Most of the farm land was deeded to Lewis who cared for his mother. Jonas' sister Eunice lived with them until her death in 1880. She is listed on the later census records as an invalid.

Charles Browning Underwood was born on May 26, 1829 in Spencer, MA⁵⁷ and was just about 3 years old when the family moved to Cayuga county, NY. When Charles was born not quite 50 years had passed since the American Revolution but by the time he dies in 1911 the United States is on the verge of adding its 48th state. Charles lived through America's greatest expansion as well as several wars including the Civil War. America began the transition from a largely rural economy into one in which cities were dominant.

Charles Browning Underwood in the late 1800s

Charles spent most of his adolescent years growing up in Auburn. With his father so busy as a Keeper at the prison and the family farm and sawmill to run, the children would have been expected to be a big part of sustaining each enterprise. He also would have learned to do shoemaking which had been passed down for four generations. Charles was a farmer but part of a generation that began to look past farming if not for themselves then perhaps their children. By the time the family moved to Chautauqua, he would have been an adult or nearly so.

In the early 1850's in Mayville, he met Frances Cornelia Farwell known to her family as Fanny. The Farwell's had deep roots in America and England stretching back generations. Frances' father, Omar Farwell, was a major landowner in Mayville as well as a prominent tanner. Leather was an important and valuable commodity. Frances has been born and raised in Mayville along with 3 brothers and sisters.

Frances Cornelia Farwell Underwood in the 1860s.

Charles married Frances on June 29, 1852 in Mayville. He began a partnership with Omar Farwell both in farming and in the tanning business. In addition, he served as an "express agent". He would handle packages that were sent via the stage or railroad. An express company would act as a shipper much like UPS today. Wells Fargo was an early Express Company.

Following is an excerpt from the 1865 New York state census. This census was taken every 10 years but mid-decade instead of at the start of the decade like the federal census. It shows Charles as an express agent. One interesting note is that the owner of the land is shown as being Frances (see arrow below). Living next to the Underwood family are Frances' parents, Omar and Fanny Shepard Farwell.

At one time Charles even provided wood for the Chautauqua County Jail. With a payment $ 52.00 it must have been a substantial amount of wood. Here is his a copy of his reimbursement:

During the 1860s, the nation suffered through the Civil War. Its effect was severe on the entire nation and I am sure the Underwoods were no exception.

Inflation was rampant as gold and silver disappeared from circulation. In 1864-65 there was an insect infestation that completely wiped out the county wheat crop.⁵⁸ Annual taxes were imposed and an entire bureaucracy was created to process them to pay for the war effort. Taxes were imposed at various rates. Here is an excerpt from a record of taxes collected during a two month period:

ALPHABETICAL LIST of Persons in Division No. 3, of Collection District No. 91, of the State of New York, liable to a tax under the Excise laws of the United States, and the amount thereof as assessed by William Joyce Assistant Assessor, and by Lewis Hall, Assessor, returned to the Collector of said District for the month of Monthly November.

Assessors must be particular to fill all the blanks in this form, as far as practicable, and to number all articles and occupations upon which taxes are assessed to correspond with the entry in the Abstract.

The occupation says "Stages GR" (Gross Receipts). He was taxed on the amount of money taken in while working as an Express Agent for the Stage Coach line. He was taxed $8.97 for the months of September and October. This was what Lincoln used to pay the staggering financial cost of the Civil War.

Charles and Frances were blessed with two children. See Appendix T – Charles Browning Underwood Family Group Sheet. Hattie (Harriet) Louise Underwood was born in 1857. George Farwell Underwood followed in 1861. Charles continued to work at several occupations and described as a farmer, express agent, and "Master Tanner"⁵⁹ at various times and in various documents. As his ancestors before him, he would do whatever it took to see to the well-being of his family.

Continuing the long family tradition, Charles was also known as a boot and shoemaker as seen in this directory of 1870:

One other interesting federal record is related to the 1860 census. It was called the Industry Census and recorded information about those involved in some type of industry or manufacturing. Charles B. Underwood is mentioned twice. In the first instance it is a listing for Farwell and Underwood.

7	Farwell & Underwood Tanners	3,500	1,000	Hides & Skins
8			100 pounds	Wards

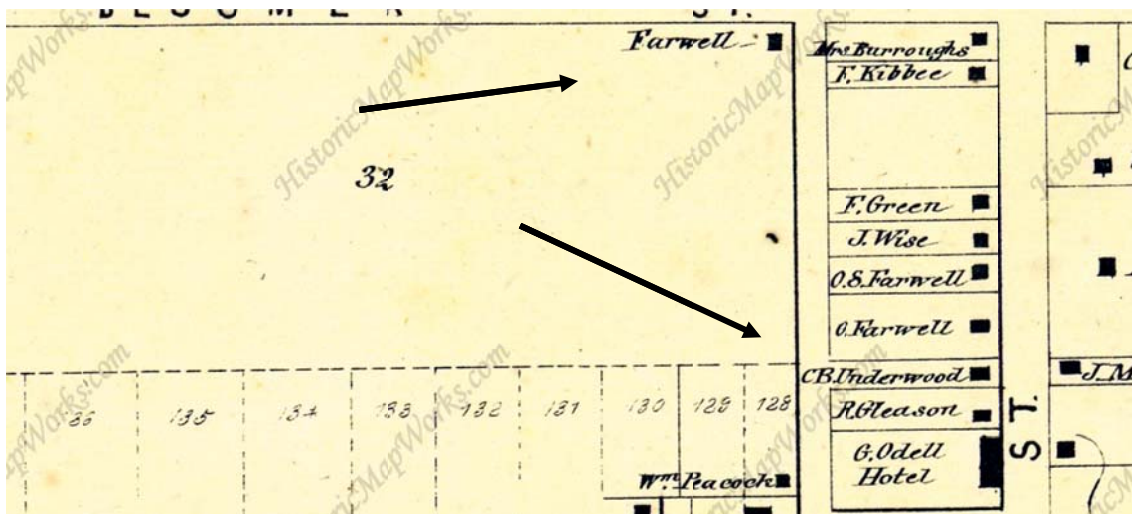

The occupation is listed as Tanners. All of the items listed as being on hand are related to this ranging from Hides to finished leather.

The next mention is just Charles B. Underwood by himself. This record (below) notes an additional occupation as a Wagon Maker

Name of Corporation, Company, or Individual, producing articles to the annual value of $500.	Name of Business, Manufacture, or Product. 			3000	Spokes	45						Slings
				Paints & Oils	100						Wagons		100

Some of the items on hand includes wagons, spokes and sleighs for wintertime. Perhaps this related to his work with the Stage lines.

A popular type of map from this time period is called a plat map. It shows land ownership in a town or county. Below is a section from a plat map of Mayville in 1867

You can see the large parcel of land for Omar Farwell as well as the location of the family home of CB Underwood. Charles would be purchasing additional land in the years ahead. Frances would also inherit some land from Omar.

Charles was a well-respected member of the Mayville community. In April of 1873 he was elected a trustee of the Village of Mayville.⁶⁰ This was one of many times he held office in Mayville. One newspaper in 1871 noted his appearance as a constable during a disturbance.

—A disgraceful drunken row occurred at Mayville on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Odell, of the Fox House, becoming annoyed with the presence of half drunken boys in his bar-room, ordered them to leave, and enforced the order by putting them out. About six o'clock a party of rowdy young men and boys congregated in front of the hotel bent on having a row, when a general melee ensued, several parties on both sides getting bloody noses and black eyes, and but for the presence of Deputy Sheriff Hiller, of Dunkirk, there would have been a more general fight. Constables Ed. Dearing and C. B. Underwood soon put in an appearance, when Eugene Moore, Dazna Kibbee, Clinton Dayton, Ed. Hazeltine, Jude and Arthur Spencer were arrested.

Disaster struck the Underwood family early in 1875. On January 9, Frances Cornelia Farwell Underwood died.⁶¹ She left behind her husband Charles and 2 teenage children. Frances is buried in the Mayville Cemetery. Her gravestone says "Died 1-19-1875 Age 45y0m7d - "Wife"". Just two years later daughter Hattie Louise Underwood died at the age of 19. She is buried next to her mother.⁶² Only Charles and 16 year old George are left in this Underwood family. In the span of about five years, George lost his grandfather (Omar Farwell), his mother and his sister.

The 1880 census does not show any young children and there is not another census until 1900 because the 1890 census was destroyed by a disastrous fire. The question of accuracy will have to go unanswered for now.

Sometime in the 1890s Charles and Addie moved to nearby Westfield. They would spend their remaining years there. In the 1900 census the occupation for Charles is listed as "none" and in 1910 as "retired".

Charles Browning Underwood died on July 27, 1911.⁶³ He was 82 years old. Charles is buried with Addie (who died in 1920) in the Westfield cemetery. His will left his estate to Addie and George F. his only surviving child.

Last Will and Testament.

June 21st. 1911.

I, Charles B. Underwood of the Town of Westfield in the County of Chautauqua and State of New York, being of sound mind and memory, do make, publish and declare this my last Will and Testament, in manner following, that is to say:

First.— I direct that all my just debts and funeral expenses be paid.

Second: I will to my wife three hundred dollars.

All the rest of the property we own jointly together consisting of real and personal, my half of which I leave the use of to my wife as long as she lives, and at death of both of us my property less three hundred dollars to be given to my son George F. Underwood if living, if not to his children.

The joint property consisting of money notes and real estate we each had at the death of both of us. Also the small black walnut bedstead dresser and washstand and feather bed to be given to George F. Underwood.

After debts and funeral expenses twenty five dollars to Cemetery Association for perpetual care of our lot.

George Farwell Underwood was born on July 17, 1861 in Mayville. By all appearances he led a fairly uneventful childhood. He would have assisted his father with whatever jobs he was doing. As he grew up, the country began to rebuild from the Civil War. The country was slowly moving from a farming economy and way of life. George had watched his father work at several different occupations while still maintaining a farm. At some point along the way, George made the decision to try a different way of life. His life was not destined to be tied to a farm.

Another family that had been in Mayville for years was the Beaujean family. The family was originally from France but in the 1700s had shipping interests in the French West Indies island of Guadeloupe and Boston. One Charles Beaujean of Boston served in the American army during the American Revolution. His descendants moved to upstate New York and eventually to Mayville. One of the Beaujean families in Mayville was that of George Reed Beaujean who much like C.B. Underwood tried his hand at a variety of occupations including farming. His family consisted of a wife, Martha Kelsey Beaujean and 5 daughters. One of them was Hattie Althea Beaujean,

Hattie Althea Beaujean 1895

Young George F. Underwood took notice of Hattie but he was about to embark on a new career. In 1886 George left Mayville for Buffalo. He got a job as a compositor (which was another name for typesetter) working for the Buffalo Daily News.⁶⁴ He had moved to the city! Buffalo was a major port and an important center of shipping. It had a population of over 100,000 compared to Mayville's population of 6000. He did not however forget Hattie. On May 10, 1888 George and Hattie were married in Mayville.

The excerpt from the local paper following had an incorrect date that apparently a family member attempted to correct.

They then settled into life in Buffalo for several years with George working as a compositor. They would return to Mayville for a few years beginning in about 1894.

There was an interesting series of court hearings in 1897. When Frances Farwell Underwood died, the land she had inherited from her father Omar passed to her children. Unfortunately there was no probate and so the ownership of the land was in doubt when George was ready to sell. It was referred to as a life estate of Frances. His sister had passed away as well so it was going to take a probate court to settle the matter.

⁶⁴ City of Buffalo, 1886 City Directory, Footnote, 2008

During the hearings a series of questions were put to George as well as H. Louise Farwell Green who was the sister of Frances. The records are attached as Appendix U. Following this hearing, it was established that George was the rightful owner as heir of his mother and grandfather. George was able to sell the property and in 1900, the family moved back to Buffalo.

It was at this point that George's entrepreneurial spirit surfaced. When he and Hattie moved back to Buffalo they set up a store selling groceries. See Appendix V - Letterhead. They operated the store for several years with Hattie serving as the bookkeeper. At the same time the Underwood family had grown. See Appendix W – George Underwood Family Group Sheet.

Elbert Victor Underwood was born on September 12, 1889 in Buffalo. Francis Omar Underwood followed on May 19, 1894 once the family had moved back to Mayville. Harry Charles Underwood was born June 7, 1896 in Mayville just a few years before the family moved back to Buffalo at the turn of the century. The Underwoods would not be leaving all family behind as Hattie's father and her unmarried sisters moved to Buffalo at the same time.

Francis Omar, Harry Charles, and Elbert Victor Underwood about 1907

After a few years as a grocer, George went back to the printing business. He worked for several different firms as well as operating his own shop. His last employer was JW Clement Printing which became one of the largest printers in the United States and a pioneer in color printing.

Education was a priority for the Underwood family. A farm family often needed all children working on the farm in order to survive. By moving to Buffalo, that type of need was no longer present. All the children graduated from Lafayette High School which was built in 1903 and is still operating today. The two older sons, Victor and Francis, went to Cornell University in Ithaca, New York. Harry chose Wesleyan University in Middleton, Connecticut. Wesleyan University was founded in 1831 by Methodist leaders and named for the founder of Methodism John Wesleyan. The school focused on service and education offering a liberal arts education rather than just theological training.

Victor and Francis both stayed close to their agricultural roots. Victor was a county Farm Bureau manager and worked with the state while Francis ended up teaching agricultural science at Cornell as well as working with the Farm Bureau. Harry chose a different path focusing on education and a liberal arts major.

Harry had a wide circle of friends and obviously enjoyed college life. At some point he met a young woman who shared many of his beliefs. Mary Edith Rider was born in 1900 and lived in Oswego, New York. She was the daughter of Burton L. Rider and Laura (Lottie) Goodier. As the years passed, their friendship deepened.

Mary Edith Rider 1918 High School Graduation picture

Harry graduated from Wesleyan in 1920. He was to be awarded a Bachelors of Science degree. When his parents planned a train trip to his graduation ceremony in Connecticut, they included Mary Rider. Years later, Mary described the event to her daughter-in-law:

“George and Hattie boarded the train in Buffalo to go to the college graduation of their son Harry. They had asked Mary Rider to join them and paid for her trip. Burton Rider drove his daughter to Syracuse to catch the train so she could join the Underwoods on their way to Wesleyan.

After graduation, they all boarded a boat on the Connecticut River which went down into the Long Island Sound and on to New York City. They all enjoyed the sights and sounds of the city and had a wonderful time celebrating Harry's graduation.

They boarded another train in New York to return home. Mary got off the train in Syracuse where her travels began. Her father picked her up for the return home to Oswego. Mary had a great time and appreciated the Underwoods paying for her trip."

Harry was now ready to face the world. His first job was as a Y.M.C.A. director in Virginia. It was a good job but took him away from his family and more importantly Mary ! Something had to change and Mary again described the events to her daughter-in-law. This was many years later:

"Harry got his job with the YMCA in Virginia. He wrote to Mary and asked her to look for any kind of a job teaching in a school. He found he could not live without her ! The YMCA would not allow a married man to live there as a director.

Mary went to see the Superintendent of Schools in Oswego who happened to be her old High School Principal. She had a very difficult time with this and had to walk around City Hall twice before getting enough "courage" to go in and meet with him.

He asked, "and what was it little Mary wanted today?" She replied, "Any kind of a teaching job for Harry Underwood." He asked, "Any relation to Victor Underwood?" She replied, "Yes, his little brother."

About a month later she received a letter from Harry that he had secured a history teaching position at Oswego High School. Mary's only difficulty was that she had attended Oswego High and her ex-teachers were now her social friends. She found that difficult to handle."

Harry Charles Underwood and Mary Edith Rider were married at her parent's home in Oswego on August 27, 1921. They settled into life in Oswego. George Beaujean Underwood was born March 24, 1923 in Oswego. See Appendix X – Harry C. Underwood Family Group Sheet.

It was about this time that Harry's father, George F. Underwood decided to retire from printing. In what was probably a surprise to the family, George and Hattie were moving to Southern California ! There is a family story that George won some land in Lake Elsinore and that precipitated the move. For whatever reason, he and Hattie moved lock, stock and barrel to Los Angeles, California.

George began investing in property and houses in various areas. They lived in a home on Belmont St. In 1924, he had a very nice house built for them which included all the modern conveniences of the time. It was located on Glenalbyn Dr. on about .75 acres and is still there today. Although far from family, they certainly had a pleasant life. It was about this time Harry and Mary decided to follow his parents to California.

In 1924 Harry C, Mary, and young George packed up their belongings and moved to Los Angeles, California. Harry first found a position at Lincoln High School before settling in for a long career at Fairfax High School. Initially they lived on Belmont St. In the late 1920s, they had moved to stay in their home on Spaulding Ave. in Hollywood. Harry Burton Underwood was born on July 7, 1927. He was the first of this line born in California. Church, school and family would dominate the life of this young family.

Despite the depression, Harry had a good job as a teacher and so the family lived comfortably. Many activities involved the local Methodist Church. Harry served as Superintendent of the Sunday School while Mary served in many of the auxiliary organizations. As the children grew, many of the church youth groups became a large part of their lives. Between school and church their lives were very full.

George F. Underwood died on February 21, 1939.⁶⁵ George and Hattie had celebrated their Golden Anniversary the year before. His life had seen many changes as he was born in the first year of the Civil War and died on the eve of World War II. America (and the Underwood family) had undergone quite a change. George was 77 years old. Hattie lived until November 26, 1943.⁶⁶

As the 1940s approached George Beaujean and Harry Burton Underwood were entering young adulthood. When the U.S. entered World War II after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, George was old enough to enlist and he joined the Army Air Force in 1942. He ended up flying 68 missions and has written about his experiences during the war. He rose to the rank of Staff Sergeant and served as a top turret gunner on a B-25. He was honorably discharged in September 1945.

Harry C., Mary and Burt served on the homefront as the entire nation went to war. There were many jobs and sacrifices to be done at home as well. Harry Burton Underwood had made the decision to go by his middle name and so would be known as Burt. He was an outgoing young man who was musical and creative as well as having a love of automobiles. He played trombone in the band at Fairfax High and has a wonderful sense of humor.

It was during this time he met a young lady named Lois Jean Denaple. They met through the church youth group and a friendship blossomed. Lois is the daughter of Richard Werner Denaple and Ruby Lillian Beckenbach. Lois was born in Opportunity Washington in July 1927⁶⁷ (just 5 days prior to Burt!) Her family which included an older sister and younger brother moved to California when she was very young. She was living in North Hollywood when she met Burt.

They began spending more time together and obviously enjoyed each other's company. Their affection for each other turned into love.

Burt and Lois were married on September 30, 1948 at the First Methodist Church of Hollywood.⁶⁸ Burt began a long successful career in advertising sales and publishing. He held positions with several firms and finished his career as a publisher based in Boston, Massachusetts. Their daughter Christie was born in Oct 1949⁶⁹ followed by Glen in June 1951⁷⁰, Leslie in May 1953⁷¹ and Keith in 1955⁷². The family moved to Tustin in Orange County, California in the early 1960s when the area was just beginning to boom. With 4 active children, life was rarely dull around the Underwood household. See Appendix Y- H. Burton Underwood Family Group Sheet.

Meanwhile Burt's parents, Harry C and Mary remained in Hollywood. Their life centered around school and church. Harry had received his Master's degree from the University of Southern California in 1956 and was Principal of Jordan High Adult School. Harry retired from education in 1961. He and Mary lived in the same house on Curson and celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary in 1971. Harry Charles Underwood died on June 18, 1985⁷³. Mary Edith Rider Underwood died on December 29, 1991⁷⁴.

In Tustin, Burt still loved working with his hands and his creative impulses found an outlet in wood working. With an artist's eye and patient determination, he made many fine pieces for family use. In his later years, he has donated his time in making wooden toys for under-privileged children. His sense of family and respect for those who came before were evident in his house. He proudly displayed cherished artifacts from his ancestors. That respect for family history have been passed on to his children and grandchildren.

Burt and Lois Underwood have led full rich lives with a sense of history behind them and the hopes of the future in the eyes of their descendants. They have been married for over 60 years as of this writing. Besides the four children, they have many grandchildren and great grandchildren who love them dearly and continue to be inspired by them. Their sense of dignity and of duty coupled with an absolute zest for life has rewarded all of us.

Burt & Lois in 1983

It has been almost 400 years since Joseph Underwood landed on the shores of a new world at Hingham in the Massachusetts Bay Colony. The story of the Underwood family has been one of courage, optimism and resilience tempered by pragmatism and a healthy dose of common sense. It is the duty of succeeding generations to honor what they have done. The story will continue.

Will of Thomas Underwood

"In the name of God Amen, I Thomas Underwood of Watertown, in the County of Middlesex, within the Jurisdiction of the Massachusetts, being sicke and weake of body, but of sound mind and good memory, blessed and praised be God, do constitute and ordeine this my last will and testament in manner and forme following, vizt first. I comend my Soul and Spirit into the hands of God, that gave it, hoping throw the merrits of Jesus Christ to have eternal life, and my body to the ground whereof it was made and to be decently buried by the discretion of my Executrix hereafter mentioned.

I give and bequeath unto my Brother Joseph Underwood the Sume of Ten Shillings, further I give and bequeath unto my Couson Joseph Underwood the sume of Three Shillings foure pence. further, give and bequeath unto my Couson Mary Underwood the sume of three shillings foure pence, further I give and bequeath unto me Couson Martha Underwood the sume of three shillings foure pence, further I give and bequeath unto Couson Hannah Underwood the sume of three shillings foure pence, further I give and bequeath unto Couson Elizabeth Underwood the sume of three shillings foure pence, further I give and bequeath unto my Couson Sarah Underwood three shillings foure pence.

Further my mind and will is that if my loveing wife Magdalene Underwood hath not need to sell all or any part of my homestall, for her comfortable livelihood in the time of her life, that after her decease, Thomas Underwood, sonne to my Brother Joseph Underwood now liveing with mee shall have and injoy as his propper inheritance my Homestall both house and barne and all the land adjacent, except the lott which I purchased of Charles Sternes, but in case the said Thomas shall prove stubborne and rebellious against my beloved wife his Aunt, that then I do hereby impowerher to disinherit him of it, and to give it to whome shee pleases that may better deserve it, but all the rest of my estate, both houseing lands, goodes, chattels, debts, or whatsoever is myne, I do freely fully, and wholly give and bequeath to my deare and loveing wife Magdalen Underwood, making her my full and sole executrix, of this my last will and testamt, willing and requiring her to performe all and every respecively of this my will according to the true intent and meaning hereof, for confirmation whereof I have hereinto annexed my hand and Seale this 15th of the 12th mo. 1667.

Lydia MUZZEY

She is buried in the Weston Central cemetery which is also called the Farmers Burying ground.

Massachusetts Town-Appointed jobs

Sealer of Leather

The leather sealer was the town officer who had authority to see that all sales of leather were made honestly as to quality and quantity. The sealer of leather was authorized to put his "seal" or stamp of approval on items he inspected, tested and certified.

Field Driver

requires the field driver to "take up horses, mules, asses, neat cattle, sheep, goats or swine going at large in the public ways, or on common and unimproved land within his town and not under the care of a keeper" and to impound the same.

Constables

Constables were elected by town officials to serve the writs and processes described in section ninety-two of the General Court and warrants and processes in criminal cases, where their town, parish, religious society or district is a party or interested. They shall have the powers of sheriffs to require aid in the execution of their duties. They shall take due notice of and prosecute all violations of law respecting the observance of the Lord's day, profane swearing and gaming. They shall serve all warrants and other processes directed to them by the selectmen of their town for notifying town meetings or for other purposes. They may serve by copy, attested by them, demands, notices and citations, and their returns of service thereof shall be prima facie evidence; but this provision shall not exclude the service thereof by other persons.

Hog Reeves

New England towns appointed hog reeves (officers charged with the prevention or appraising of damages by stray swine). Hogs were usually supposed to be yoked (wear collars) and have rings in their noses, which reduced the amount of damage they could do to gardens and crops by rooting. This was not a minor concern, because this food was necessary for human survival. There were punishments established for failure to control animals.

If the owner of a hog had not 'rung' and 'yoked' their hogs, and they got loose and became a nuisance in the community, one or more of the men assigned as Hog Reeve would be responsible for capturing the animal and performing the necessary chore for the owner; who could legally be charged a small fee for the service.

Feb'y. 19th, (No. 586, R. No.2, p. 105.) Sentenced for five years for petit larceny, second offense, was discharged from Auburn State Prison 15th instant. Says that Wells, late warden, is a cruel tyrant, was very passionate ; has seen him cut the hair close off their heads and showered them, and put iron collars on them. The present warden is a much better man than Wells; E. L. Porter is a fair man.

A prisoner by the name of Bennet, who went from Sing Sing to Auburn on the 27th of last August, on leaving his cell in the morning had on a thin muslin cap that he had taken with him from Sing Sing, and which he had been allowed to wear while there; when he got in the yard, Underwood, a deputy keeper, ordered him to take it off;

He replied, I will not, but when I get in the shop I will if you order me to do so. Underwood complained to the warden who ordered Bennet to be punished. Underwood then ordered him to the bath; he refused to obey because he thought he did not deserve punishment;

He said that he had always had the privilege of wearing it at Sing Sing, and he could not see why the same privilege should not be allowed him at Auburn. Underwood then called to his assistance several of the prisoners and ordered them to take him to the bath by force.

Underwood beat the man over his head with his cane till he broke it; they then put Bennet in the bath and showered him with two barrels of water with ice in it. Bennet complained to Wells and Comstock, Inspectors, but they took no notice of it. Not long afterwards Dr.

George Farwell UNDERWOOD

1886 George was in Buffalo NY as a "Compositor" for the Buffalo Daily News. This was two years before marrying Hattie Beaujean. He worked for two different newspapers and eventually opened his own printing shop. He also operated a grocery store for a number of years before returning to printing. In the 1920s George and Hattie came out to California.

In the matter of Establishing the right of Inheritance to the real property of which Francis C. Underwood died seized, and also of which Hattie L. Underwood, died seized.

Appendix U - Estate of Frances Farwell Underwood

George F Underwood having heretofore presented to this Court his petition, duly verified, praying that a decree be made, establishing the right of inheritance to the real property of which both the said Francis C. Underwood and the said Hattie L. Underwood, died seized, and having also presented to and filed with this Court a waiver of the issue and service of citation executed by Charles B. Underwood, consenting that a decree may be made herein, establishing the right of inheritance to the real property of which the above named decedents died seized, without further notice, to him, and the Surrogate, having heard the allegations and proof of the parties and there being no contest respecting the heirship of any party, nor respecting the share to which any party, is entitled as an heir of the said Francis C. Underwood or of the said Hattie L. Underwood, and the Surrogate having enquired into the facts and circumstances of the case, and the said petition having established by satisfactory evidence that on or about the 19th day of January, 1875, the said Frances C. Underwood died at the Village of Mayville, Chautauqua County N.Y. which at the time was her place of residence, leaving her surviving a husband Charles B. Underwood, a daughter, Hattie L. Underwood, and the petitioner, a son, George F. Underwood, that the said Frances C. Underwood died seized of the real property in said petition mentioned and hereinafter described, that said Frances C. Underwood died intestate; that the said George F. Underwood and the said Hattie L. Underwood were the only heirs at law of the said Frances C. Underwood and each inherits an undivided one half part of the said real property, subject to the life estate therein of the said Charles B. Underwood, husband of said decedent; that subsequently and on the 3rd day of March, 1877, the said Hattie
L. Underwood, died at the Village of Mayville, Chautauqua County
N.Y. which was at that time her place of residence, that said Hattie L. Underwood died intestate; that the said Hattie L. Underwood died seized of the said undivided one half part of said real property subject to the life estate therein of the said Charles B. Underwood; that the said Hattie L. Underwood left her surviving as her only heir at law her said father, Charles B. Underwood, who inherits from her the said undivided one half part of said real property so inherited by her from the said Frances C. Underwood; that the said George F. Underwood, is a son of the said Francis C. Underwood and resides at Mayville, Chautauqua County N.Y. and is aged 35 years; that the said Charles B. Underwood is the husband of the said Frances C. Underwood and father of the said Hattie L. Underwood and resides at the Town of Westfield C. hantanguas County, N. Y. and is aged sixty eight years; that the said George F. Underwood is proved to be entitled to an undivided one half part of said real property of which the said Frances C. Underwood died seized and intestate, subject to the life estate therein of the said Charles B. Underwood, that the said Hattie L. Underwood is proved to have been, at the time of her death, seized of an undivided one half part of the real property of which the said Frances C. Underwood died seized and intestate, subject to the life estate therein of the said Charles B. Underwood, husband of the said Frances C. Underwood and father of the said Hattie L. Underwood; that the said Charles B. Underwood is proved to be entitled to the undivided one half part of said real property owned by the said Hattie L. Underwood at the time of her death and of which she died intestate, and also of a life estate in the said undivided one half part of said real property inherited by the said George F. Underwood, now on motion of the said petitioner.

It is ordered, Adjudged and Decreed that the right of inheritance of George F. Underwood and Charles B. Underwood in and to the real property situate in the town of C. hantanguas, County of C. hantanguas, and State of New York, of which the said Frances C. Underwood and the said Hattie L. Underwood both fate of the said Village of Mayville, deceased, died seized, and which is hereinafter described, has been established to the satisfaction of the Surrogate of C. hantanguas County in accordance with the facts hereinbefore recited, and that the said George F. Underwood is entitled to an undivided one half part of the said real property inherited by him from the said Frances C. Underwood subject to the life estate therein of the said Charles B. Underwood and that the said Charles B. Underwood is entitled to an undivided one half part of said real property inherited by him from the said Hattie L. Underwood and also to a life estate in the undivided one half part of said real property to which the said George F. Underwood is entitled, which said real property is bounded and described as follows:

All that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the Village of Mayville and distinguished as part of lot No. 104 in said village bounded southwesterly by a street one chain wide 88 links, northwesterly by lot Number 32, 5 chains; northeasterly by Erie street 88 links, and southeasterly by a line parallel to the northwestern bounds of said lot number 104, 5 chains, containing $\frac{44}{100}$ of an acre or the same more or less.

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the Town of C. hantanguas and known as a part of lot number 16 and 24 in the 3 township and 14" range of the Holland Land Company's survey bounded as follows:

Beginning at the northeast corner of land deeded by Clement Strong to Hattie Moor, thence west along said Morris north line to the northwest corner thereof, thence north four links to the northeast corner of land deeded by the Holland Land Company to Joseph Blackner (formerly), thence west bounding on said Blackner's land 26 chains 50 links to a stake in a creek, thence northwesterly along said creek far enough to make eight chains due north from stake, thence east 61 chains 56 links to the east line of said land above mentioned deeded by Charles B. White.

man to Clement Strong; thence south along said line 8 chains to the place of beginning, containing 50 acres or the same more or less.

Also all that other piece of land in said town, being a part of said lots 16 and 24 in the 3rd township and 14th range of the Holland Land Company's survey bounded as follows: Beginning at the south east corner of land conveyed by Charles S. H. Putnam to Clement Strong, thence north on a line parallel to the west bounds of said lot 16, 6 chains and 66 links; thence west on a line parallel to the north bounds of said lot 37 chains and 15 links; thence south on a line parallel to the west bounds of said lot 24, 19 chains and 97 links; thence east in a line parallel to the north bounds of said lot 24, 18 chains and 98 links; thence north along the east bounds of said lot 24 13 chains and 31 links; thence east on a line parallel to the north bounds of said lot 16, 18 chains and 11 links to the place of beginning, containing 50 acres or the same more or less.

Also about one acre of land situate in the town of Chautauque County of Chautauque and State of New York, being a part of lot number 23, third township and fourteenth range of the Holland Land Company's survey and being the property excepted from the conveyance made by C. Maria Lifford to Darius M. Spring and Henry D. Spring by deed dated the 10th day of November, 1875, recorded in the Clerk's office of the County of Chautauque in Lib. 171 of deeds at page 404, and therein described as the 'Furnery Lot' and also being the same premises devised by the Will of Omar Farwell to Frances C. Underwood, recorded in the Clerk's office of the County of Chautauque in lib. 131 of deeds, at page 386.

Witness the hand of the Surrogate and the seal of the Surrogate Court the day and year first above written.

L. D. E. E. Woodbury, Surrogate.

Surrogate's Court, Chautauque County.

In the matter of establishing the right of inheritance in the real property of which Francis C. Underwood died seized and also of which Mattie L. Underwood died seized.

Surrogate's Office, Mayville N. Y. March 22, 1897.
George F. Underwood, the petitioner and one of the heirs at law of decedent, appears in person.

Charles B. Underwood waives the issue and service of citation and consents that a decree establishing the right of inheritance to the real property of which the above named decedents died seized may be made without further notice to him at such time as the Surrogate may fix for that purpose.

It is claimed that Charles B. Underwood is father and only heir at law of Mattie L. Underwood, a daughter of Frances C. Underwood who has died since the decease of her mother.

George F. Underwood, sworn, testifies as follows:
